Welcome and Introductions – Molly Holmes
The Advisory Council collaborated with Representative Ryu’s office and SHAG to coordinate a listening session at SHAG’s Interurban Building. Speakers included State Representative Ryu (32nd district), Seattle City Councilmember Juarez (district 5) and Isaac Prevost, Legislative Assistant to Rep. Strom Peterson, 21st Legislative District. The panel responded to questions about Washington’s State’s Aging Friendly Future. The Advisory Council, the Snohomish County Area Agency on Aging Advisory Council, AARP, SHAG residents, local healthcare organizations, and Seattle Parks were in attendance.

Maureen Linehan, Aging and Disability Services Director began the session by describing the role of Area Agencies on Aging, the supports and services it provides to communities.

Representative Ryu’s 32nd district overlaps King and Snohomish Counties. She has resided in the district for more than 33 years and served as a Shoreline City Councilmember and was elected Mayor in 2008. She is running for her third term as State Representative. She currently chairs the House Community Development, Housing & Tribal Affairs Committee and is vice chair of the House Business & Financial Services Committee. She recently sponsored a “payday lending bill” which tightens the law for payday lenders and helps consumers.

Her district has seen the population grow tremendously and she expressed concern about workers spending an enormous amount of time commuting to jobs. She sees the silver tsunami as a resource for society and the importance of giving people the opportunity to age in place.

Finally, she encouraged everyone to vote and to think hard about the implications of who they vote for as every vote counts.

Seattle City Councilmember Debora Juarez represents the City’s newly formed 5th district where she has lived for over 30 years. Her number one priority is public safety and is collaborating with the community, city council and Mayor to develop a much needed police station in the north end.

She raised concern about rising rents and property taxes which has pushed older folks from their housing. However, she is pleased the Housing Levy passed and supports the HALA recommendations. In addition to housing issues many residents face:

- Food insecurity
- Lack of affordable housing
- Lack of access to mental health and drug treatment programs
- Few transportation options

Seniors continue to remain one of her priorities. She supports the expansion of Medicaid, Medicare and Social Security to meet the needs of the growing senior population and she is working closely with Mayor Murray to make sure our elders have the services they need to stay at home.
Question: What can be done about older adults who lose their housing?

Answer: Revenue is needed to develop housing and supportive services. The 2017 legislature faces pressure to fund education required by McCleary. This may result in other important issues being pushed aside. Policy makers must hear stories about the plight of families, and be given information about the return on investments in social programs. In other words, it’s less costly to help people before they lose their housing and health.

Finally, the Washington State Housing Alliance is supporting a Medicaid waiver to connect housing and support services. If passed the waiver will give the Healthcare Authority the authority to build affordable/low income housing with support services.

Question: What can be done to improve employment opportunities and eliminate ageism?

Answer: Councilmember Juarez responded by saying her Native American community pays seniors to work in schools and hospitals which keeps them active and engaged. As an attorney, Debora felt employers could be sued for age discrimination but cautioned age discrimination is difficult to prove.

Representative Ryu acknowledged people are living much longer. While seniors have the option to retire and take social security as early as age 62, opportunities must be made available for them to remain in their positions or volunteer for programs which pay a stipend. Another option for people with extensive experience is to eliminate requirements to take standardized tests as a condition for employment.

Question: Are you familiar with the Alzheimer State Plan?

Answer: Neither Representative Ryu or Councilmember Juarez were aware of the recently completed plan. Aging and Disability Services will email information about the Alzheimer’s plan to both of them.

Question: How will you ensure good transportation options will be available for residents?

Answer: Every other state and nation has a rail system. Not only is light rail important for our region but the bus system in King County must be continually maintained. Furthermore, main thoroughfares such as 145th must be upgraded – a difficult undertaking since 145th is part of three jurisdictions. Representative Ryu has submitted a house member request to study 145th.

Northgate has become a “hot neighborhood”, growing fast in anticipation of the light rail and a decision to target Seattle’s 5th district for higher density. The district maintains a hospital, college, and mall. Yet it lacks convenient bus stops, grocery stores and is in need of a community center. The community continues to push for a new light rail station, transit oriented housing and a bridge over I-5 to mitigate the split in the district.

Question: How will you secure funding for transportation?

Answer: Representative Ryu served on the transportation committee. She is hopeful the finance committee will have enough votes to fund transportation in 2017.

Question: How will you ensure Universal Design is incorporated into new construction?

Answer: New housing should incorporate universal design elements during the planning process, avoiding the need to retrofit structures. Many group homes in Shoreline lack universal design features, yet for many participants it is vital to their mobility and quality of life.
Question: Have you considered the needs of people with hearing loss?
Answer: As an attorney, Councilmember Juarez has personally seen the importance of clear communication which eliminates mistakes. Additional resources are needed for medical interpreters and for people with limited English speaking skills. While expensive, (over $250 for an hour), interpreters help professionals determine if there are cognitive, or medical issues. The audience chimed in saying they appreciated the hearing loop recently installed in the council chambers.

Question: Are there plans to increase the amount of affordable housing?
Answer: The City of Seattle currently gives tax credits to nonprofit low income housing developers. The Council may consider amending the current law to allow private developers a tax credit for creating low income/affordable housing. Also under consideration is an expedited permit process to allow older houses to be moved to other locations. This strategy will reduce solid waste in landfills and create additional housing. The State allocated $8 million dollars to the Housing Trust Fund during the 2016 session.

Question: How do mobile homes fit into the affordable housing plan?
Answer: Mobile homes are a form of affordable housing. However, many city land use laws prohibit mobile homes. Mobile home park owners continue to sell their property to maximize their return. Many families have become displaced and must move 30 miles or more outside urban areas to find inexpensive housing options.

Question: What other options are available to reduce homelessness:
Answer: It’s complicated. The Seattle City Council recently passed legislation in which landlords are no long able to deny access to housing based on the source of income. Another law is being considered which requires landlords to rent on a first come first served basis. The Seattle City Council plans to vote on whether developers of new projects must allocate a portion of units as affordable or pay into fund to build more units.
